

Epicooler Australia Reviews

Curriculum Vitae (CV)

What job i'm looking for? My positive points promises, such as: Cools large rooms quickly

- Cuts energy bills dramatically
- Works with “advanced cooling technology”
- No installation, no hoses, no drainage, no maintenance
- “Thousands of happy customers”

Now compare those claims to independent feedback and basic engineering reality:

1. “Cools a whole room”

2. Users repeatedly report that it does not cool the room, it only blows air. Some even say it functions more like a noisy fan or a weak heater in a box, depending on mode.

3. “Revolutionary cooling technology”

o There’s no clear explanation of a compressor, refrigerant, or heat rejection path. That strongly suggests it’s not a true AC, but an air circulator or at best an evaporative-type cooler that can’t live up to the “AC” name.

4. “Energy efficient”

o Any small fan will use less power than a real AC. But if you’re expecting AC-level cooling with fan-level power draw, that’s physically impossible. You don’t get something for nothing.

5. “Risk-free purchase / easy refund”

o Real-world buyers heavily dispute this. Many complain about unexpected charges, difficulty cancelling, and problems getting refunds. In short: the marketing language and the likely reality of the product do not match well.

Real User Feedback: What Are Customers Saying?

This is where things get serious.

Recent independent reviews of Epicooler on consumer platforms are overwhelmingly negative, focusing mostly on:

1. Allegations of Scam-like Behaviour

On Trustpilot, recent reviewers from Australia repeatedly describe Epicooler as a “scam”, warning others not to buy. Common issues mentioned:

Prices shown in local currency, but charged in USD without clear warning

- Being charged for extra units, extended warranties, or subscriptions they say they didn’t knowingly accept
- Extremely difficult or refused cancellations, even when requested shortly after ordering
- “Money-back guarantee” that is hard or impossible to use in practice

On Reddit’s r/scams community, users call Epicooler out specifically as a summer “miracle aircon” scam, stating that:

It’s basically just a fan

- Advertised cooling performance is physically impossible
- The same pattern has appeared before with rebranded cheap devices from marketplaces like

Alibaba

These are serious red flags you should not ignore.

2. Product Performance Complaints

Even customers who did receive the product and tried it report things like:

“Doesn’t cool at all, just blows air”

- “Very mild effect at best”
- “Noisy” and “disappointing”
- Some claim it behaves more like a heater or barely-noticeable fan

Again, this lines up with the physics: without a compressor or exhaust hose, it simply cannot function like a real AC.

What Epicooler Actually Seems to Be

Putting all this together, what do we most likely have here?

Based on:

- The lack of real AC hardware
- The advertising style
- User reports of performance
- Independent scam warnings

Epicooler is best described as:

A heavily-marketed small fan device, possibly with a heating element, sold at a premium price and promoted with air-conditioner-level claims it does not realistically meet.

In other words:

- If you expect a proper AC: you’ll almost certainly be disappointed.
- If you think of it as a cooling fan: it’s an overpriced fan with huge customer-service risks.

Pros and Cons of Epicooler (On Paper vs Reality)

To be fair, let’s list out potential pros and cons as honestly as possible.
